Email from Karen Longley at Lea Green Nursery at 09:47am:

Hi,

I am the safeguarding and nursery manager at Lea Green Nursery. I am sharing a safeguarding concern regarding 2 year old TB who was dropped off this morning by mum. TB was crying hysterically and mum seemed to be unable to contain the situation. Rather, I witnessed some rough handling. She tugged harshly at his reins and almost lifted him off the floor. She kept shouting for him to stop being soft.

Mum has learning difficulties and I think she has social care help for this. I have also shared my worries about mum's parenting with children's services in the past but received no update. I feel that TB needs support and told mum that I think I should contact you. It was noisy in reception - TB was on the floor kicking and screaming. I think mum's words were, "Go on then. They can have 'im". She put her hands over her ears and she walked out. Please can you advise before mum collects TB today?

The social worker's visit to nursery:

I was introduced to mum who initially was sat with TB on her knee. Mum explained that she had hardly any sleep last night due to neighbour nuisance and "totally lost it" this morning. Mum said that her neighbours play loud music and throw eggs at her window. She said that she feels she is being targeted for "being different". She mentioned that her other son gets scared and has some "sensory problems like me". TB was extremely active and ran around the room, back and forth to mum with a paper aeroplane. He presented as happy and his clothes were clean. He smiled at mum and mum smiled back and giggled. Mum said she hadn't got long because she needed to pick up TB's brother from school. She said her social worker is visiting tomorrow to talk about "getting out and about".
